Re: Motion to Dismiss

Dear Mr. McCoy,

In the United States, as a general rule, courts do not have self-executing powers. In to rule on a contested issue in a case before it, one of the parties or a third party mu asking for a particular order. Some motions may be made in the form of an oral requ either summarily granted or denied orally by the court. Today, however, most motion dispositive issues that could decide the entire case) are decided after oral argument of legal papers. That is, the movant is usually required to serve advance written noti legal argument justifying the motion. The legal argument may come in the form of a r
