Tropical Rainforests

All the tropical rainforests are near the equator. Most of them are in the Tropics. The biggest tropical rainforest is the Amazon rainforest in South America. The second biggest is the Congo rainforest in Africa. South Asia also has lots of tropical rainforests. There are smaller rainforests in Central America, Madagascar, India, Australia, and on the islands near Australia.

Tropical rainforests have some of the biggest rivers on Earth, like the Mekong River in Asia and the Congo River in Africa. The biggest rainforest river is the Amazon River in South America. The Amazon is about 6,400 kilometres long.

Many smaller rivers go into big rainforest rivers. More than 1,000 smaller rivers go into the Amazon.

Many animals live in rainforest rivers. The Amazon has more than 3,000 types of fish. One example is the piranha. It has big teeth. Anacondas also live here. The anaconda is one of the biggest snakes in the world.

People need rainforest rivers, too. Rivers give people fish to eat, and water. Rivers are also important for travel. Many people travel by boat because there aren't many roads.

MY 'HEALTHY SUNDAY' PLAN

Jodie Tyler is 14 years old and she's from Cambridge in Britain. Read her tips for a healthy Sunday.

'Hi, I'm Jodie. I love my life but I don't think I have an active lifestyle. I love listening to music on my mp3 player and I surf the internet a lot. In the evening, I talk to my friends on the phone and I watch TV with my family. On Saturdays, I like meeting my friends. I think I eat a good diet, but I love chocolate, ice cream and cake. So, on Sundays I think about my health. This is my plan for a healthy Sunday.'

- Eat some healthy food. Read my Sunday menu for some ideas. I don't eat pizza, cake or chocolate on Sundays and I don't drink fizzy drinks.
- Do some exercise. I like riding my bike on Sundays. It's fun and it's good exercise. Sometimes I play football with my brothers, Zak and Charlie. It keeps me fit!
- Get some sleep. I love staying up late on Saturday night. But on Sunday night I go to bed early – ready for school on Monday!

Sunday Menu

BREAKFAST

Nutty Fruity milkshake
I have this every Sunday for breakfast. I make it with milk, yoghurt, nuts and strawberries. It's low in fat and high in vitamins and it's delicious.

LUNCH

Tuna pasta
My family loves tuna pasta. Tuna fish is high in protein and it's low in fat. Pasta is high in carbohydrates, and carbohydrates give you energy.

DINNER

Kebabs
Meat is very good for you. It's high in protein and vitamins. I make kebabs with lots of fresh vegetables. It's easy. My brothers love kebabs. We eat them with salad and fresh bread.
